Appearance:

1. Special Civil Application No. 5747 of 2004

MS BANNA S DUTTA for Petitioner No. 1

MS AC RAVAL, AGP for Respondent No. 1-3

RULE SERVED for Respondent No. 2

CORAM : HON'BLE MR.JUSTICE P.B.MAJMUDAR

Date of decision: 05/08/2004

ORAL JUDGEMENT

Leave to amend is granted by correcting the name of the petitioner.

2) By filing this petition, the petitioner-detenu has challenged his detention order dated 09-02-2004. By the said order, the petitioner is detained as a "bootlegger" under PASA. Along with the order of detention, petitioner is also served with the grounds of detention. In the grounds of detention, there is a reference about four criminal cases pending against the petitioner. All these cases are registered under the Bombay Prohibition Act. In the grounds of detention, the detaining authority has also relied upon the statement of two secret witnesses and the authority has claimed privilege under Section 9 (2) of the Act and, therefore, the names of those two witnesses have not been disclosed. The aforesaid order of detention is challenged by the petitioner on various grounds.

3) Ms.Banna Dutta, learned advocate for the petitioner has submitted that though various points are available she is confining her argument qua delay in deciding representation of the petitioner. She submitted that the petitioner has made a representation through his advocate on 18th March, 2004, which was received by the State Government on 31st March, 2004 and the same was decided on 5th April, 2004 therefore, there is a delay in deciding representation of the petitioner. She has also placed on record copy of intimation received by the petitioner from the Home Department dated 5th April, 2004. It is submitted that delay in deciding representation is not explained by the respondents, even though the point regarding delay is taken in the petition.

4) To substantiate her say, the learned advocate for the petitioner has relied upon a decision of this Court in NARAYAN TUKARAM BADDI v. State of Gujarat & Ors. reported in 1996 (1) GLR 31, wherein on the ground of unexplained delay in considering the representation, this Court has set aside the detention order. In the aforesaid case, the Court was concerned with a case wherein the petitioner was detained under the provisions of the Prevention of Black Marketing and Maintenance of Supplies of Essential Commodities Act. The detenu therein made a representation, which was disposed of after a considerable delay and delay was not satisfactorily explained. This Court held that the authorities may act with utmost promptness in disposing of the representation. While quashing the detention order passed against the detenu, this Court held that right is guaranteed to every detenu of making representation at the earliest opportunity against the order of detention and as a necessary corollary by using words "as soon as may be" in Article 22 (5) of the Constitution of India, the anxiety on the part of the framers of the Constitution of India to inform the detenu of the grounds of detention is reflected. This Court further observed that once the earliest opportunity is provided to make a representation against the order of detention, correspondingly, there is a constitutional obligation for the speedy and expeditious consideration of such representation by the authority. This Court further held that utmost promptitude, expedition and diligence is expected from the authority to consider such representation. Even though no time limit is prescribed for the purpose of deciding representation, any indifference, avoidable delay or remissness on the part of the authority in considering the representation would vitiate the continued detention of the detenu.

5) Unfortunately, no affidavit-in-reply is filed by the respondent-authority and the delay in deciding representation of the petitioner has remained unexplained. Therefore, the averment made in the petitioner regarding delay in deciding representation has remained uncontroverted. In that view of the matter, since the representation of the petitioner is not dealt with forthwith, this petition is required to be allowed. As further detention of the petitioner would be violative of Article 22 (5) of the Constitution of India and the same is held to be illegal.

6) At this stage, learned advocate for the petitioner made a voluntary statement that the petitioner will not enter Navayard, 'D' Cabin area of Baroda city upto 31st October, 2004, unless he is required to attend Court proceedings. This statement is recorded and the police authority is directed to monitor whether the petitioner is complying with the said statement or not.

7) In view of above discussion, this petition is allowed. The continuous detention of the detenu is held to be illegal and the detenu, Imran alias Bittu alias Hasan Mohammadali Shaikh is ordered to be set at liberty forthwith, if he is not required in connection with any other case. Rule is made absolute.
